

national sanctions, and for other purposes, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed.

NOTICE OF HEARINGS ON FARM BILL

Mr. ELLENDER. Mr. President, I wish to announce that earlier today the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry met and decided to hold hearings on the administration farm bill, S. 2786, beginning Monday, February 19. I express the hope that those who desire to testify will let their wish be known to the committee clerks. I announce further that the committee has decided that once hearings are started, it is our purpose to go through with them until they are completed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2470) to provide for the establishment of the Lincoln Boyhood National Memorial in the State of Indiana, and for other purposes.

ADDRESSES, EDITORIALS, ARTICLES, ETC., PRINTED IN THE APPENDIX

On request, and by unanimous consent, addresses, editorials, articles, etc., were ordered to be printed in the Appendix, as follows:

By Mr. CAPEHART:

Address delivered by Senator GOLDWATER before the Notre Dame University student body in South Bend, Ind., on February 26, 1962, on the subject of the struggle against Communist domination.

By Mr. MURPHY:

Editorial entitled "A Balanced Budget?" published in the Littleton (N.H.) Courier of February 1, 1962.

By Mr. JAVITS:

Editorial entitled "Congress and the CIA," published in the New York Times of February 7, 1962.

By Mr. GRUENING:

Article entitled "Municipal Utilities Manager Says 'Time Already Run Out,'" written by Paul Lien, and published in the Fairbanks (Alaska) News-Miner of recent date, dealing with Alaska's power needs.

By Mr. HRUSKA:

Article entitled "Recreation—Southwest on Nebraska's New Industry," written by Ralph Bush, agricultural economist, and Dean Schachterle, management agronomist, both stationed at the offices of the Bureau of Reclamation, in McCook, Nebr.

By Mr. BENNETT:

Article entitled "More Power for the Army in the Field," written by Gen. Herbert B. Powell and published in the January 1962, issue of the Army Information Digest.

Editorial entitled "Success to BYU's 'Brain Trust,'" published in the Deseret News of Salt Lake City on January 27, 1962, concerning the success of Brigham Young University in the College Bowl competition.

Resolution by National Association of State Contractors Licensing Agencies at a convention held in Salt Lake City, Utah, on September 7, 1961, dealing with problems involved in planning and constructing fallout shelters.

By Mr. MUNDT:

Article entitled "Dynamiting Dreamer Gets Things Done," written by James O. Rippey, and published in the Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Argus-Leader of January 7, 1962, dealing with the part played by Kozmak Ziolkowski in the creation of a monument to the American Indian, in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

By Mr. WILEY:

Article entitled "Russ Eager To Buy Complete Factories," published in a recent issue of the Milwaukee Journal.

Article entitled "Future Looks Bright for Railroad Museum," written by John Torinus and published in the Green Bay (Wis.) Gazette.

MUZZLING OF MILITARY OFFICERS—STATEMENT BY ROBERT E. HANSEN

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Mr. President, the January 17, 1962, statement of Robert E. Hansen, commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States submitted to the Special Preparedness Subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is one of the most perceptive, intelligent, and thorough statements I have ever seen.

Commander Hansen and the Veterans of Foreign Wars deserve the highest commendation for this excellent document, which is truly a profound public service to their country.

I am particularly impressed with pages 13, 14, 18, 19, and 22, of the statement. I am most impressed with pages 26 and 27 because of the excellent to-the-point recommendations in which I find myself in hearty agreement with the sole exception of recommendation No. 5.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR RUSSELL

Mrs. SMITH of Maine. Mr. President, that distinguished and brilliant commentator, Tristram P. Coffin, recently made a broadcast that captured a delightful insight of the senior Senator from Georgia [Mr. Russell] that has never been captured before to my knowledge. It is this type of interpretative reporting which sets Tris Coffin apart from his journalistic colleagues.

Because of its excellence and because of the great interest that Members of the Senate have in the senior Senator from Georgia, I would like to read excerpts from this broadcast of Tris Coffin:

Senator Russell of Georgia is the kind of gentleman any young lady would love to have as an uncle. He possesses an old-fashioned courtesy that is charming. He is worldly wise and tolerant of human frailties. He has a vast amiability that smooths over troubled moments.

All of these admirable qualities were on display a few days ago in the small Senate Armed Services Committee room, which has the air of a well-run antique shop: two sparkling cutglass chandeliers, a long table covered with green felt, pitchers of ice water. None of the confused modern contraptions of microphones that don't work and boom out squeaks and assorted noises into loudspeakers. None of the blasted glare of floodlights for television cameras. A quiet, contented, gracious air.

Senator Russell was presiding at the hearing on the confirmation of John McCone as Director of Central Intelligence. . . . Senator Russell was in good humor at the hearing. During the interrogation of the new Navy Secretary, an earnest Senator CASE of South Dakota worried about the Secretary's position on beef for the boys. Senator Russell said amiably, "Do you have any strong feelings on oleo?"

Another appointee admitted to being a Harvard professor. Senator Russell inquired solicitously, "How are the new professors getting along up there? Have they had time to find their way about the campus yet?"

Then, abstractedly, he asked, "I wonder when they are going to discover the oldest State university in the country?" "They" meant President Kennedy and "the oldest State university" is the beloved University of Georgia at Athens, Ga., where Greek literature is read in the original.

A nonmember of the committee, Senator EUGENE MCCARTHY, came to the table, at the chairman's invitation, and began to read a statement hardly complimentary to McCone. Senator Russell took this philosophically, with the professionally calm air of an indulgent uncle. . . . Senator Russell said soothingly in his pleasant Georgia voice, "Mr. McCone will have wide scope in replying."

Once, Senator RUSSELL leaned over and whispered an aside to Senator SALTONSTALL. That gentleman's face broke into a smile of pure joy, and all around the table other Senators sat up with glowing and amused looks. John McCone's blue eyes showed the hint of a glint. The press table boys grinned as if they had heard a delicious secret. Of course, none of us, except Senator SALTONSTALL, had any idea what Senator RUSSELL said.

It just shows the power of the man's personality. Maybe, come to think of it, the administration ought to investigate the products of the oldest State university. This is Tris Coffin in Washington.

THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Mr. ERVIN. Mr. President, February 7 through 13 is Boy Scout Week. I was reminded of the occasion a few days ago because a young Cub Scout from Arlington, Va., Alan Walker, visited me in my office and did me the favor of calling the fact to my attention by presenting me with a lapel pin to wear during the week-long observance.

Today we mark the 52d birthday of the Boy Scouts of America. This company of young gentlemen was chartered by Congress in 1916 and has nourished more than 38 million Americans to maturity and manhood, teaching them not only to "be prepared," but, in addition, to "do justly and love mercy and walk humbly with thy God." Therefore, it is fitting that Senators should note this occasion with particular pride and enthusiasm, for the Boy Scouts are not only the beneficiaries of our free country; they are its protectors as well, endeavoring to prepare themselves today for the benefits and burdens of tomorrow.

I am particularly pleased at this time to commend the Boy Scouts of my own State, North Carolina, for their activity and growth through the years. North Carolina has one of the most aggressive and productive scouting programs in the Nation and the Scouts and their leaders have the esteem of our State, and in-